Funding Conference in the Hauts-de-Seine department chooses Otono-me to protect its seniors

As part of a call for projects, the Funding Conference of the Hauts-de-Seine department has chosen Telegrafik, a company specialising in data analysis for the best home care, to offer 100 elderly people of at least 60 years of age, living alone at their homes in Hauts-de-Seine, to test the Otono-me service for 9 months free of charge.

"This project will allow 100 people and their families to benefit from Otono-me, a much safer service than the classic wearable call buttons. If you are interested in taking part in the project free of charge, please contact us!" says Carole Zisa-Garat, CEO of Telegrafik.

The service will include 24/7 availability of the Securitas Telecare professional monitoring platform, the installation of discrete non-intrusive sensors at home and a mobile app.

"With the app, families can connect from their phone or computer. They see at a glance if all is well with their loved one, and have the opportunity to customise their service, and receive notifications by text message. Thanks to Otono-me, the elderly person can carry on living as normal, he/she is safer and his/her family and friends are reassured," says Pierre Thos, Project Manager at Telegrafik.

The Hauts-de-Seine Funding Conference supports Otono-me

In the middle of the year, the Funding Conference of the Hauts-de-Seine department launched a call for projects for measures to prevent and reduce loss of autonomy for the elderly. The project proposed by Telegrafik with its partners BNP Paribas and Securitas Telecare has been selected, and its funding will contribute to improving the quality of life of local senior citizens. As part of this initiative, vulnerable people are being asked to participate by testing the service free of charge for 9 months at home.
